About

National Pension System (NPS) was initially introduced for the Central Government employees who joined on or after 01.01.2004. The NPS was made available to all citizens of India on 1st May 2009. Later, in order to facilitate the organised entities, including public sector organisations, a customised version of NPS, known as the NPS Corporate Sector Model, was introduced in December 2011.

NPS Corporate Sector Model offers a robust platform for employers to extend old age social security benefits to their employees, allowing for flexible contributions from both employer and employee. It is a cost-effective alternative to self-administered pension schemes, as employers are not required to manage recordkeeping, investments, or annuity-related activities—these are handled by specialised intermediaries under NPS, which are registered and regulated by the PFRDA. This model can seamlessly complement existing retirement benefit schemes like EPF and SAF. Employers have the flexibility to centrally select the Point of Presence (PoP), Pension Fund (PF), and investment options for all employees, or allow individual employees to make these choices independently. Both employers and employees can avail tax benefits under this model. Employers can claim their contributions as a business expense, while employees benefit from tax deductions on their own contributions as well as those made by the employer. The portability of the NPS account (PRAN) makes it particularly suitable for corporate sector employees, ensuring continuity in retirement savings despite frequent job changes.

Eligibility

Eligible Employees:

Indian citizens, including Resident Indians, NRIs (Non-Resident Indians), and OCIs (Overseas Citizens of India) who are employees of a corporate entity that has adopted the National Pension System (NPS), are eligible to enrol under the NPS Corporate Sector Model.

- Age: 18 to 85 years
- Mandatory: Completion of Know Your Customer (KYC) norms
- Registration must be done through the employer

Eligible Corporate Entities for NPS Registration:

The following types of organisations can adopt NPS as a retirement benefit scheme for their employees:

1. Companies registered under the Companies Act, 2013
2. Co-operative societies registered under applicable state or central laws
3. Government bodies or entities established under any Act of Parliament or State Legislature
4. Public Sector Enterprises (PSEs) or Government companies
5. Registered Partnership Firms
6. Limited Liability Partnerships (LLPs)
7. Proprietary Concerns
8. Trusts and Societies
9. Foreign companies registered under Sections 591–608 of the Companies Act, 1956, for their eligible Indian employees
10. Foreign diplomatic missions in India (e.g., Embassies, High Commissions, Consulates)
11. International organisations operating in India (e.g., UN, WHO, World Bank, ADB, IMF)

How to Register for the NPS Corporate Sector Model?

To implement NPS for its employees, a corporate entity must register with the Central Recordkeeping Agency (CRA) under the NPS Corporate Sector Model. This may be done by submitting a Corporate Registration Form (CHO) through a registered Point of Presence (PoP).

Benefits for Corporates and Employers

Organizations that adopt the National Pension System (NPS) under the Corporate Sector Model enjoy several strategic and financial advantages:

1. Voluntary and Flexible Implementation

- NPS can be offered alongside other retirement schemes such as Provident Fund (PF) and Superannuation Fund, enhancing employee retirement planning options.
- Corporates have the flexibility to define contribution structures:
 - Equal contributions from employer and employee (e.g., 10% each)
 - Unequal contributions (e.g., 10% by employee, 14% by employer)
 - Contribution by only the employer or only the employee
